far justified and how to be regulated, was the subject under investigation at City Hall to-day by the United States Industrial Commission.

The commission, of which Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City is chairman, returned to New York to-day after more than six months absence in the Middle West and in the mining regions of Colorado. In previous hearings, during the last year and one-half of its three-year job, the commission has studied the relation of wages to actual work and employer's profits. The members of the commission, besides Mr. Walsh, are John R. Commons of Wisconsin, John Lennon of Illinois, Mrs. J. B. Harri-man of New York, Harris Weinstein of California, S. Houston Ballard of Kentucky, James O'Connell of the District of Columbia, and Austin B. Garretson of Iowa. All but Mr. Commons were present to-day.

Samuel Untermyer, counsel to the Pujo Committee of the Senate on the "Money Trust," was the first witness to-day. Others who are to be called are Ida M. Tarbell, John Mitchell, Jacob H. Schiff, August Belmont, Adolph Lewisohn, E. J. Berwind, J. P. Morgan, George W. Perkins, Daniel Guggenheim, Samuel McRoberts, Samuel Gompers, Morris Hilquitt, Louis A. Brandeis, Prof. F. H. Giddings, John D. Rockefeller Jr., Andrew Carnegie, former President Eliot of Harvard, Amos Pinchot, R. Fulton Cutting, Seth Low and John Hays Hammond.

The great philanthropic Rockefeller and Carnegie Foundations obtained charters through friendly State governments when the Federal Government refused.

Mr. Untermyer said he did not believe the work of these foundations was influenced by the founders. They were doing much good and no harm. These foundations should have (1) a general federal charter; (2) a limited term of existence because no generation should bind another when conditions are constantly changing; (3) a limitation as to size; (4) a prohibition against the accumulation of income; (5) representation by federal trustees when the present trustees begin to retire.

In answer to a question by Chairman Walsh, Mr. Untermyer said: "The control of industrial conditions lies in the hands of a small number of directors or financial groups, regardless of the wishes of the stockholders. I do not know an instance where any change in the management of any American railroad was brought about by the stockholders—except when two great interests were at war.

"My observation is that the representatives of interests here in New York are less acquainted with national sentiment and conditions than the man in Oshkosh. This is the most provincial community in the world."

Mr. Untermyer then attacked the statements of the Rockefeller interests do not control the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, because they own less than 40 per cent of the stock.

Mr. Untermyer said the evil of government of corporations by interests could be lessened if the corporation was compelled to do away with proxy voting, to furnish the names of candidates for directorates ninety days in advance, to allow mail voting and to allow minority representation.

Mr. Untermyer suggested a national insurance act, covering accidents, unemployment, illness, death, invalidity and maternity.

Q. You regard the present government of railroads, you say, as harmful because it deprives the stockholder of a voice? A. Yes, and because it deprives the railroads of the wisdom and experience of stockholders.

Q. And you would point to the New Haven as a horrible example? A. I should point to others much more horrible. The New Haven was not the victim, in my opinion, of corruption so much as of very bad judgment.

Mr. Untermyer refused the customary witness fee of $2 when he stepped from the stand, but he was obdurate. "I never accept pay for testifying in public hearings," he said.
